

PRAGUE MEETING ON HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVES OF MASS SPECTROMETRY

Opening of the Czech Mass Spectrometry Museum

Dear colleagues,

On behalf of the organizing committee and organizing institutions, I would like to invite you to the Prague meeting on historical perspectives of mass spectrometry. The conference is held on the inauguration of the Czech Mass Spectrometry Museum and celebrates the 70th anniversary of mass spectrometry in Czechia. This unique event will take place in Prague, October 13-14, 2021.

This unique two-day conference is devoted to history, status, and future perspectives of mass spectrometry. The event will bring an exciting program combining presentations from honorable Czech and international scientists, representatives of producing companies mapping the historical development of their instruments, and young colleagues early in their careers. The early evening poster session will be conveniently followed by a social evening with dinner.

The invitation has been accepted by great scientists and experts from the Czech Republic and abroad, including:

Prof. Helen J. COOPER (University of Birmingham)
Prof. Albert J. R. HECK (Utrecht University)
Prof. Michal HOLČAPEK (University of Pardubice)
Prof. Karel LEMR (Palacký University Olomouc)
Prof. Evgeny NIKOLAEV (Skolkovo Institute of Science and Technology)
Dr. Miroslav POLÁŠEK (Heyrovský Institute of Physical Chemistry of the CAS)
Prof. Jan PREISLER (Masaryk University)
Prof. Helmut SCHWARZ (Technische Universität Berlin)
Dr. Aleš SVATOŠ (Max Planck Institute for Chemical Ecology)
Prof. Patrik ŠPANĚL (Heyrovský Institute of Physical Chemistry of the CAS)
Prof. František TUREČEK (University of Washington)

The registration is now open until August 15, 2021, but it will be postponed to August 31, 2021, at least. The registration fee 190 EUR (regular) / 150 EUR (students) covers also meals (lunches, dinners) and social event. If the SARS-CoV-2 pandemic forces the organizers to hold the conference online, the same registration fees apply. All fees will be refunded in full if the organizers cancel the conference.

Do not hesitate and register for this unique conference, which will undoubtedly offer an enjoyable, scientifically rewarding, and inspiring program.

I look forward to your participation,

Josef Cvačka

Chair of the PMHPMS
